DEDICATION

In appreciation of his sympathetic and devoted interest in the problems and activities of the students, with respect for his ability, conscientiousness, and knowledge as a teacher, and with admiration for his judgment and foresight as a principal, we, the Class of 1937, sincerely dedicate this our Year Book, to Mr. Donald P. Mattoon.

FOREWORD

"Those friends thou hast, and their adoption tried, Grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel."

In high school are formed friendships the significance and importance of which cannot fully be appreciated until later in life.

Having passed through all the confused struggles of our sophomore year, the gay fun of our junior year, and the work and dignity of our senior year, we realize that we are about to take a step which will separate us, perhaps forever. In order that we may not forget the common joys and sorrows, the losses and victories that have welded us together in a bond of friendship in our high school days, we have compiled this tangible memoir, with the hope that it will recall to us, in coming years, many pleasant occasions.

The staff of the Year Book wishes to take this opportunity to express its deep appreciation and gratefulness to Miss Winnifred C. Lyman for her unfailing devotion and faithfulness in assisting in publishing this edition. The valuable time, effort, and advice that she has given us and our predecessors are truly worthy of recognition: we humbly and sincerely thank her.

We also wish to express our gratitude to Mrs. Gertrude F. Olsen, Miss Mildred Hannon, Miss Elsa Henchel, Miss Dorothy Pope, Mr. Everett W. Robinson, Mr. Donald P. Mattoon, and all others who have contributed to the success of this issue.

FIVE DAYS MAKE A WEEK

by Margery Louise Bessom

"What?" you ask dubiously. "Five days make a week?" and then you inquire, "How come?"

Let me explain. Way back in the dark and dismal past, thousands of years ago, there arose among the Jews the momentous question of choosing a Sabbath Day. They, the predominant race on the earth at that time, chose Saturday as their day of rest; later, with due respect to the Hebrew dispensation, the Christians adopted Sunday as theirs.

Centuries afterwards, there came into existance another group of people, a group who were interested in the educational welfare of the younger generation. It was they who founded the public school system, and consequently, were also confronted with the necessity of adopting a calendar. After much consideration, and perhaps inspired by the ideas of past generations, they established, to the sheer delight of all scholarly aspirants, a five-day week with both Saturday and Sunday as days of relaxation.

Many years passed, and then came into prominence still another group, an aggregation commonly known as the Class of 1937. Others may claim the credit for instituting the five-day week, but these young people were unusually quick to grasp its opportunities and use them to the utmost advantage.

On September 5, 1934, Mother Nature sent forth a glorious dawn. That day, too, marked the dawn of an unforgettable era in the lives of eighty-three wordly-wise ninth-graders, for it was then that they took the tremendous step that made them lowly sophomores in Mansfield High School.

During the first few months of our sojourn, under the comforting guidance of Mr. Green, our principal, and Mr. Carnie, our class adviser, we courageously endured the haughty glances and amused expressions of the upper classmen. We would show those gloating superiors that we weren't there just to ornament the corridors or to conceal ourselves meekly in remote corners!

In union there is strength so late in the fall we took the first step toward organizing our forces and elected Joseph Lucy president, Tony Farinella vice-president, Eric Grundy treasurer, and Margery Bessom secretary. Then we proceeded toward our goal.

Our journalistically-inclined members were kept extremely busy. Freddie Carbonetti, Clayton Cate, Milton Ripley, Eddie Foy, Alberta Salls, and Margery Bessom secured positions on the Green Parrot staff and endeavored to write their way to fame.

During the year we established an enviable reputation in the field of sports. In fact these months marked the discovery of many famous athletes who were testing their skill in football, basketball, and baseball. Newell Eames, Tete Gillespie, Joe Stachelek, Bud Bartlett, Milt Ripley, Joe Lucy, Tony Farinella, Al Ferzoco, George Santucci, and Eddie Foy upheld the honor of the boys, while Eleanor Williams, Doris Santucci, Eleanor Scatolini, Frances Shepard, Margaret Day, Elia Ferri, and Margery Bessom worked admirably for the girls.

Five days make a week! "A week of pleasure?" you ask. Ah, no! Marjorie Woodbury and Joe Stachelek were awarded prizes for excellence in typewriting. Clayton Cate and Henry Steele distinguished themselves in the art contest sponsored by the New Century Club. Even in these anti-classical days, Edward Corey gained fame as a Latin student; and Angie Scialoia, Alberta Salls, and Margery Bessom won honors in domestic science. Two of our members, Raymond Tillotson and Celenie Caron, found time to participate in the annual prize speaking contest.

In reviewing this first year in Mansfield High School, one can truthfully say that the goal sought in September had been justly attained by June. And one would, no doubt, add that it was well worth a two months' vacation with a transition from the five-day plan of those engrossed in the problems and techniques of schooling to the common seven-day week.

The next fall, impatient and eager, we began our junior year with five fewer members than at the beginning of our sophomore year. Under the able leadership of Mr. Green, our principal, and Miss Pope and Miss Henchel, our new class advisers, we anticipated, with no little excitement, a busy and happy ten months.

The boys ran away with the honors in our class election. Joe Lucy became president, Tony Farinella, vice-president, Thomas Gillespie, secretary, and Edward Corey, treasurer.

With true intentions of adding spice and variety to the Green Parrot, Marjorie Woodbury Bertha Gross, Milton Ripley, and Alfred Carbonetti pledged their allegiance to its staff. For a second time we had two entrants in the speaking contest, Alberta Salls and Al Ferzoco.

Despite the short five-day week, we still had time for invention. To our class goes the honor (we hope) of originating the Junior Social. During October and November we fairly bubbled over with suppressed excitement—we were about to stage our first dance! The affair was a huge success socially, if not financially. It did not create a deficit, as many projects are apt to do, but netted us two dollars plus for the treasury!

What junior ever forgets when he received his class ring or pin? Ours came in January and for many days were the subject of interest to envious sophomores, polite seniors, and proud juniors.

The reception we tendered the senior class in June will long be remembered as an outstanding social event of Mansfield High School. For weeks we labored in preparation, many times running over the five-day limit, but in the end we were fully rewarded. The transformation of the drab interior of the Town Hall into the delightful atmosphere of a formal garden, the enchanting music, the lights, the general spirit—all deserved the praise they received.

Once more we won laurals in athletics. Joe Stachelek, Milt Ripley, Tete Gillespie, Bud Bartlett, George Santucci, Newell Eames, Joe Lucy, Tony Farinella, Al Ferzoco, Mike Piasecki, and John Unger represented the boys. The girls' teams remained unchanged.

Several scholastic honors also were awarded. Margaret DePrizio and Marjorie Woodbury won prizes in shorthand, Margery Bessom in Latin, Veronica Smith and Margery Bessom in homemaking, and many received pins for typewriting.

Thus ended our second year, another stepping-stone in the path to graduation.

The following September, assuming the cherished title of seniors, we entered Mansfield High School for the last term. Regretting the resignation of Mr. Green as principal, but glad to learn that Mr. Mattoon was to succeed him, we began the busiest year of our school life. Miss Shepard and Miss Jones became our advisers.

True to tradition, we got under way early in the fall by holding our class election. So successful had Joe Lucy been in superintending our five-day plan in previous years, that we chose him as our president for the third time. Thomas Gillespie was elected vice-president, Edward Corey secretary, and Marjorie Woodbury treasurer.

Acquiring a business-like spirit, immediately eight of our members—Edward Corey, Milton Ripley, Henry Steele, Tony Farinella, James Fletcher, Ruth Griswold, Mary Pellegrini, and Margaret DePrizio—joined the Green Parrot staff and proceeded to issue eagerly-anticipated publications.

Meanwhile rehearsals were well in progress for Junior, our class play. On Thanksgiving night, because of the fidelity and diligence of its entire cast, the comedy was a "smash hit." Who can forget Celenie's winsome blushes, Charlie's fatherly sterness, or Ernest's captivating flattery? Quite appropriately, after such conscientious work on everyone's part, we broke our tradition and had a three-day week with a real Thanksgiving.

As spring approached, we modestly displayed our class pictures to our friends. Sentimental exchanges ensued.

In March we decided to follow a newly-begun precedent by voting to wear caps and gowns at our baccalaureate and graduation exercises. We also chose to publish a yearbook.

In April Mr. Mattoon satisfied our ever-increasing curiosity by announced that fourteen of us had received the coverted honor of becoming members of the Pro Merito Society. They were Harold Bartlett, Margery Bessom, Charles Colella, Russell Cooper, Tony Farinella, Thomas Gillespie, Bertha Gross, Mary Lane, Joseph Lucy, Austin Smith, Marian St. Cyr, Antoinette Tessier, Ernest White, and Theodore Wilson.

It soon became time to discuss graduation plans. Harold Bartlett and Austin Smith had attained the highest scholastic honors, but the titles of valedictorian and salutatorian were abandoned. Marian St. Cyr and Tony Farinella were selected to present essays as part of the graduation exercises. The history was assigned to Margery Bessom, Bertha Gross was chosen prophet, and Thomas Gillespie was entrusted with the drawing up of the class will. The music for the class song was to be written by Ruth Griswold. We chose as our motto, "We Strive to Conquer." Our class flower was the white rose and our colors were silver and blue.

Our last year in high school brought crowning glories to our athletic reputation. The boys were undefeated on the gridiron. They won seventeen out of twenty games during the basketball season, and had a banner baseball year. The girls won the interclass volleyball tournament and gained second place in the basketball meet. Our star athletes included Al Ferzoco, Mike Piasecki, Newell Eames, Joe Lucy, Milt Ripley, Bud Bartlett, Tete Gillespie, Joe Stachelek, Chuck Unger, Ernest White, Eddie Corey, Jim Fletcher, Al Delliacano, and Marian St. Cyr, Frances Shepard, Eleanor Williams, Mary Lane, Eleanor Scatolini, Thomasina Flammia, Doris Santucci, Enis Blandori, Elia Ferri, Margaret Day, Aurora Albertini, Blanche Damato, and Margery Bessom.

Had any stranger arrived at school one day in early June, he would have been quite dumbfounded. To the amusement of all, we were observing Tramp Day and the ridiculous garbs we wore will never be forgotten.

Our last week together was truly an impressive one. On Sunday we attended Baccalaureate services in the Congregational Church. The solemnity of the occasion made us realize more than ever the step we were about to take.

Tuesday evening we were graduated from Mansfield High School. The deep, sincere feelings of mingled gratitude, joy, and sorrow that we experienced that last night together can never be erased from our memories.

Five days make a week. Thus ended three years of the happiest weeks in the lives of the sixty-three members of the class of 1937.

CLASS PROPHECY

by Bertha Gross

Good evening, Mr. and Mrs. America. This is your Mansfield correspondent, Bertha Gross, giving you her version of news through a woman's eyes. Before I go to press, let me state that I am dedicating this program to the Class of 1937 of the Mansfield High School, since tonight is the tenth anniversary of our graduation. It has taken much laborious research, but I have succeeded in learning the fate of all my classmates. And now to press.

Flash: By way of the high seas:

London: Margaret Day, London's favorite night club entertainer, begins a long term engagement at the Mayfair this evening. Miss Day has just returned from a vacation in her native United States.

Paris: Ethel Keating today married Lord Baltimore Maynard. Lady Ethel was a member of Earl Carrol's Vanities.

Berlin: Dr. Tony Farinella and his associate, Dr. Charles Colella, today landed in Berlin. From here they will proceed to Vienna to attend the convention of the International Medical Association. Every nation sends its foremost doctors to this important meeting. (It certainly makes me feel proud to think that Uncle Sam has chosen two of my classmates for such an important mission.)

Paris: The annual Parisian Style Show closed today. Among the designers exhibiting gowns was our own Theodore Wilson. His well-known Gowns by Theo have caused a sensation. Frances Shepard was chosen as the most beautiful manikin at the show.

Flash:

Boston: The Honorable Joseph Lucy today was elected president of the Massachusetts State Senate. Young Mr. Lucy's rise to fame has been nothing short of meteoric. He has been president of the Amalgamated Tin Company of America, president of the Newport Yachting Club, and has held the same office in many other associations. And by the way, Mr. and Mrs. America, Joe was our class president for three successive years.

Boston: Henry Steele appeared at Symphony Hall last evening and held the audience spellbound for two consecutive hours while he performed upon his Stradivarius. The high-light of the program was Steele's rendition of Rimsky Korsakov's immortal composition, The Bee.

Boston: At a dinner held last Wednesday evening the Boston Evening Transcript paid homage to Ruth Griswold, who has been working for the paper for the past three years. She writes many of the witty stories which appear in the publication every day.

Mary Pellegrini and Eleanor Scatolini are instructors in their own school, the School of Chatter. They offer many courses, the most popular of which are How to Talk Yourself Out of Difficult Situations, How to Speak Fluently Under any Circumstances, and The Art of Creating a Riot. The graduation exercises of the school are always attended by a large gathering from police headquarters, lest the pupils demonstrate their art too successfully.

Flash: New York

Ernest White has just completed his latest edition of White's Abridged Dictionary. His dictionaries have become just as widely used as Webster's.

Kid Bowser, America's lightweight champion, and his manager, Newell Eames, arrived in New York today just prior to his battle with Tuffy Callahan. During an interview with the reporters Eames said that Bowser's only problem was to gain enough weight to contend for the heavyweight crown. Kid Bowser, by the way, is Alexander Ferzoco.

Helen Powers is the head athletic coach at Vassar College. She is such a great sport enthusiast and is so well liked that students compete for a place in her class.

Raymond Tillotson, Mansfield's contribution to the music world, has just finished a long term engagement at the Central Park Casino. He left immediately to start a personal appearance tour. His first stop will be at Mansfield's La Boheme Night Club. He is to be accompanied by his orchestra and his featured singer, Bing Giovino.

Angie Scialoia and Margaret Deprizio have opened their new Beauty Salon on Fifth Avenue. They are patronized by New York's Smart Set. Margaret's prime object is to give all her patrons a beautiful complexion, while Angie's specialty is giving permanents guaranteed to last an entire week.

Flash: Hollywood

Ruth Bignell, better known to her cinema fans as Suzy Suzecue, has just completed work on a brilliant comedy, entitled Was It Porkchops? Upon completion of the film she left immediately with her secretary, Madolyn Josselyn, for a long rest in Honolulu.

Flash: Mansfield

Reverend Howard Cook, known to the Class of 1937 as "Dusty," chooses as his subject for next Sunday morning's sermon, "Ashes to Ashes and Gold Dust to Dusty".

Joe Stachelek left today to begin his new coaching duties at Notre Dame. Bill Matto, who attends the same university, has gone out for sports. He is water boy and his frequent dashes across the gridiron keep him in practice for the track team.

Mary Lane and Antoinette Tessier are instructors at the Mansfield School of Business Administration. Both specialize in shorthand. The dean of the school is William Fiske.

Aurora Albertini and Enis Blandori have opened a food shop. Their success is due mainly to the delicious bread which they bake. As the saying goes, "They are up to their necks in dough!"

Ripley's Rippling Ryhthm Revue is ending its week's engagement at the La Boheme Night Club. Just for your information let me say that his company includes the XYZ Sisters, (better known to us as Mary Beatty, Dorothy Dunne, and Ruth Smith). The master of ceremonies is Victor Delliacono.

Speaking of the La Boheme Night Club, I might say that the proprietor of the club is none other than Thomas Gillespie. I asked Tom once why he had followed this vocation. He said that he always had enjoyed night life and therefore he had built the club, so that he could stay up late every evening without making excuses to his father.

Elia Ferri is employed as an Italian interpreter at Ellis Island. Elia says that all her success is due to her study of that language at the Mansfield High School.

Helen Prohodsky has entered the nursing profession. She is head nurse at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Sterling Conrad, Mansfield's strong arm of the law, last night captured three bandits single handed, just as they were about to break into the police station. It is said that Mr. Conrad's conspicuous bravery will make him our next chief of police.

Flash: New York

Edward Corey, Editor-in-Chief of the New York Daily, held a farewell party at his home last night for his friend and business associate, James Fletcher. Jim, who draws cartoons in a manner not unlike Walt Disney's left this morning for Hollywood, where he will draw cartoons to be made into motion pictures.

Flash: By way of the high seas:

Vienna, Austria: The Countess Lewellen has again consented to say "I Do." The lucky bridgegroom? He is the Baron Lotta Monee. Their intimate friends say they will be married early in the fall. And who is the countess? Why she is our own Alberta Salls.

Paris: Marian St. Cyr, our Paris fashion correspondent, sends news that at last the American influence is being felt in Europe. Instead of the usual flowers on the ladies' spring bonnets, the designers are this season adorning their hats with miniature skyscrapers. (It would be just too terrible if the Egyptian influence were felt and designers began placing miniature pyramids on hats.)

Flash: Mansfield

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur ———— of 49 Central Street, Mansfield, are today observing their fifth wedding anniversary. Mrs. ———— is the former Celenie Caron. (I often recall that this was one of the high school romances which lasted.)

Thomasina Flammia and Doris Santucci will soon open a detective agency at the corner of Main and Villa Streets. It is to be called The Snip and Snoop Detective Agency. At present they are trying to decide which is Snip and which is Snoop.

Harold Cruser has also opened an agency but it is quite different from the above mentioned one. Harold owns an undertaking parlor. His motto is "Let me take care of the family skeleton." He may often be seen about town humming that melancholy little ditty, "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead, You Rascal, You."

Russell Cooper, that dominating figure of the Class of 1937, has risen to fame. He is the present Town Manager of Mansfield.

Victor Torrey and Casimir Piasecki are both members of the Mansfield School Committee. At present they are working on a plan which will provide for two days of school and five days of vacation each week.

Flash: Hollywood

Director Robert Hoyt today announced to the press that his new foreign importation, Sigrid Neilson, is about to appear in her first American film. This much talked of star has lived in seclusion ever since her arrival in Hollywood. The title of her first film is Romeo and Sigrid. The part of Romeo will be played by the great lover, Olvidio Scarpellini. In spite of the fact that Sigrid is reputed to be a foreign actress, I am sure that if the members of the Class of 1937 will observe her closely, they will recognize none other than Marjorie Woodbury.

Flash: New York

Harold Bartlett today sailed from New York on the Normandie. He is on his way to Paris, where he will be our ambassador to France. The president believes that Bartlett, in his eloquent manner, will probably collect the war debt in five minutes.

Secretary of Labor, Margery Bessom, today stated that the strike in the Beorgia Cotton Mills has been settled. (Let me say at this point that Miss Bessom has worked unceasingly to iron out this difficulty.)

Austin Smith has just returned from Argentina, where he had been in charge of constructing an underground tunnel. Mr. Smith states that as soon as the plans have been completed, he will commence work on a bridge which will span the Atlantic Ocean.

Flash: Mansfield

Alfred Carbonetti, Mansfield's man about town, today announced that just as soon as Mr. Smith completes the Atlantic Bridge, he will cross it on his roller skates.

Blanche Damato has cultivated the art of writing love letters for young romantics who are not well versed in the subject. She earns quite a bit of pen-money this way. The only trouble, however, is that Blanche becomes so absorbed in her work that she signs her own instead of her client's name. As a result she has been sued for breach of promise a countless number of times.

The Mansfield Art Galleries are devoting space to an exhibition of the work of the famous artist, Clayton Cate. In several pictures one may discover the face of his favorite model, Eleanor Williams, better known as the girl on The American Magazine.

Veronica Smith is instructor of domestic arts at the Smith School of Cookery. One of her special courses is called The Smith Style of Scraping Toast in Ten Easy Lessons.

John Unger, Fire Chief of Department 6 of Mansfield, today stated that in the future there will be a smaller number of fires. It seems that John's lifelong friend, Eric Grundy, has invented a fire detector which shows that a fire is to take place half an hour before it happens. Chief Unger says that if Eric will now invent a machine which will give the location of the spot where the fire will occur, all his worries will be over.

Thus I come to the end of the 344th edition of the International Journal. And now, if you will excuse me, Mr. and Mrs. America, I should like to make one personal remark to my classmates before I close.

I am excused? Thank you.

To you, my classmates, I wish to say just this. I sincerely hope that you are as well satisfied with your vocations as I was when I learned how through your efforts fame had come to the Mansfield High School.

CLASS WILL

by Thomas Gillespie

We, the Class of 1937 of the Mansfield High School, being of unsound and uncertain memory, do declare this to be our last will and testament, revoking all former wills made by us.

The following document, having been duly presented for probate in the Supreme Court of the County of Hilarity, in the State of Confusion, is hereby announced to the sympathizing public.

Harold Cruser, the lady-killer, leaves his unassuming manner to Emile Jalbert.

Alfred Carbonetti offers Norman Alden some of his extra height and weight.

Edward Corey, the class soda-jerker, leaves a standing invitation to all underclassmen to call on him and he will fix them up. (For a consideration, of course!)

Mary Beatty leaves Priscilla Bowles a series of vocal exercises, designed to produce a loud, resonant voice that Ruby Keeler might envy.

If Jimmie Sullivan will take it, Clayton Cate will be glad to give him his booklet, How to Play a Saxophone in Ten Easy Lessons.

Thomasina Flammia leaves all prospective orchestra committees a supply of calling cards, which subtly will remind them of the musical talents of her family.

How to Keep a Steady Boy Friend, edited by Madolyn Josselyn, is bequeathed to Evelyn Underwood.

Howard Cook, the articulating artist, leaves his enunciation to Kenneth Chapman, with hopes that he will use it to advantage.

Victor Delliacano leaves his excuses for passing in late home work to Russell Barrows.

To Benoni Latham, Robert Hoyt leaves his pamphlet entitled Tic Tac for Two in Two Ten-Minute Lessons.

Casimir Piasecki leaves Bud Rider his grit in sticking to football.

To Roberta Underwood, Ethel Keating leaves her free pass to the Hollywood Studios.

Antoinette Tessier leaves John O'Donnell a new alarm clock to help him catch the 7:35 train from West Mansfield.

Frances Shepard leaves to Elizabeth Branigan her permission to ride in a certain red Oldsmobile, only, of course, while Frannie is at college.

Charles Colella bequeaths to Mike Prohodsky his ability to hit "fouls."

Harold Bartlett leaves his keenness in math to anyone who thinks that he can acquire the knack.

Margaret DePrizio is willing to give to John Lane her book entitled Excuses for Being Tardy.

Stephen Mandelesi will receive Tony Farinella's latest book, How to Bake a Loaf of Bread.

William Fiske surrenders his lounging chair on the East Mansfield bus to Arthur Faria.

Alexander Ferzoco's One Hundred and One Reasons for Being Expelled from Class is bequeathed to Joe Cutillo.

To Don Currivan, Joe Stachelek gives over his position as captain of a victorious football team.

Newell Eames leaves his successful ways with Foxboro girls to Robert Paulson.

Milton Ripley donates his Romeo and Juliet act to Ezio Benigni and Huldah Cobb.

Doris Santucci has just finished her pamphlet on Six Easy Ways to a Man's Heart and wills it to Loretta Chapman.

Veronica Smith, our own mystery chef, leaves her ability to prepare appetizing meals to Eleanor Folotico.

Ruth Smith leaves to Dot Booth her persistent manner, as an excellent means of getting one's own sweet way.

To Grace Davenport, Ruth Bignell leaves her subdued flirtatious manner.

James Fletcher donates to underclassmen free road maps of Mansfield and the surrounding vicinity.

What the School Girls Should Wear, edited by Dorothy Dunne, is bequeathed to Beverly Westhaver.

To Eleanor Agnew, Helen Powers leaves her excellent ability to tap dance.

Olvidio Scarpellini wills Bernard Gegenheimer his jealously guarded secret of attracting women.

Mary Lane leaves her ability to win shorthand medals to Virginia Andrews.

Joseph Lucy leaves to Fred Vallett his duties as president of the Senior Class.

Mary Pellegrini, that quiet studious girl, leaves her subdued manner to Angie Palladino.

Eleanor Scatolini and Margaret Day have pledged themeslves to buy "Huckie" Day, Margaret's brother, a strong rat trap. This is to keep the "animal" out of his tent.

John Unger regretfully leaves a certain sophomore miss. May the best man lose, and John win!

Theodore Wilson leaves the secret of his unblushing blemishes to Harold Morse.

Jenevieve Willard is given full control of the boys' stag line at all future high school dances. Who is the donor of this honor, you ask? Why, Marjorie Woodbury, of course.

Russell Cooper promises himself to acquaint Robert Young with the art of taking down illegible shorthand.

Celenie Caron leaves her reserved manner to Cora Hatch.

To Rose Certuse, Helen Prohodsky bequeathes a pear of roller skates, so that her long walk to school will be made easier and more enjoyable.

To her sister, Phoebe, Margery Bessom leaves her latest booklet, called, The Pleasures of Editing Class Year Books.

Grace and Charm, edited by Marian St. Cyr, is willed to Emma Gross.

Eric Grundy leaves his ability in bookkeeping to Edwin Greene.

William Matto donates to Albert Childress a set of body-and-muscle-building exercises.

Angelina Scialoia leaves her ready attention in all classes to Priscilla Wills.

Bertha Gross leaves her cheerful manner to Pauline Hudson.

Raymond Tillotson leaves the high school piano to any student who is musically inclined.

Ruth Griswold bequeathes her poetic ability to Regina Bellew.

Austin Smith leaves his splendid vocabulary to the student who can memorize all those polysyllabic words.

Henry Steele's new booklet entitled Draw Me is willed to William Baxter.

Elia Ferri and Blanche Damato have combined their ideas and published a book entitled Simple Bookkeeping in Thirty Minutes. They have willed their book to Edward Creeden.

Aurora Albertini bequeathes to her sister, Rena Albertini, two pennies, with which to buy some gum to last until the end of the term.

Eleanor Williams, the dancing butterfly, is taking the opportunity to give Louise Morini a few new flutters, as it were.

Victor Torrey bequeaths his initiative in classes to Harold Bell.

Sterling Conrad leaves William Howe some sound advice on how to drive carefully.

Armando Giovino leaves Stanley Cross his ability to take black eyes with a smile.

Alberta Salls bequeathes her love for English literature to Marjorie Pitman.

To David Ingram, Ernest White leaves his ability to translate Virgil.

Enis Blandori bequeathes her love for dancing to Janice Haines.

Thomas Gillespie leaves a box of aspirin to the unfortunate individual who is selected to write the next class will.

The class as a whole leaves its sincere thanks to the faculty for their patient guidance throughout its high school career.

In witness whereof, We, the Class of 1937, the Testators, set our hands and seal, this fourteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven.

Witnessed by:

CLASS SONG

by Ruth Judson Griswold

The first chapter comes to a quiet close;
The time to leave draws nigh;
The great Book of Life is before us now,
The book where our destinies lie;
But whatever the future may hold for us,
We'll remember Mansfield High.

Though we write our lives on sand or stone,
Though the critics disagree,
Though the book may end ere it fairly starts,
God grant that it may be
Upright and honest, brave and true,
And open for all to see.

And though we are leaving our youthful days,
With the chapter ending tonight,
The sorrows, the joys, the friends we have shared
Will linger in letters of light,
And guide our hands, our hearts, our souls,
As the rest of the book we write.

In the Long Run

you and your friends will prize the portrait that looks like you—your truest self, free from stage effects and little conceits. It is in this "long run" Photography that PURDY success has been won. Portraiture by the camera that one cannot laugh at or cry over in later years.

For present pleasure and future pride protect your photographic self by having PURDY make the portraits.

DAY DIVISION

College of Liberal Arts

Offers a broad program of college subjects serving as a foundation for the understanding of modern culture, social relations, and technical achievement. The purpose of this program is to give the student a liberal and cultural education and a vocational competence which fits him to enter some specific type of useful employment.

College of Business Administration

Offers a college program with broad and thorough training in the principles of business with specialization in Accounting, Banking and Finance, or Business Management. Instruction is through modern methods including lectures, solution of business problems, class discussions, professional talks by business executives, and motion pictures of manufacturing processes.

College of Engineering

Provides complete college programs in Engineering with professional courses in the fields of Civil, Mechanical, Electrical, Chemical, Industrial Engineering, and Engineering Administration. General engineering courses are pursued during the Freshman year; thus the student need not make a final decision as to the branch of Engineering in which he wishes to specialize until the beginning of the Sophomore year.

Co-operative Plan

The Co-operative Plan, which is available to the students in all courses, provides for a combination of practical industrial experience with classroom instruction. Under this plan the student is able to earn a portion of his school expenses as well as to form business contacts which prove valuable in later years.

Degrees Awarded

Bachelor of Arts — Bachelor of Science
